Doris Day Has Delta City Date

Doris Day hopes to be in New Orleans on Oct. 3, which is the sixth month anniversary of her marriage to Marty Melcher.

When Doris and Melcher were married last April 3, they had planned to go to New Orleans on their honeymoon, but because of problems with redecorating and refurnishing their home, they were unable to get away for the New Orleans trip.

"We promised ourselves we'd make it on the half-year anniversary," the blonde singing star explained, "and it looks as though we might be able to."

Since her marriage, Doris has appeared for Warner Bros. in "Starlift," and is currently working in "I'll See You In My Dreams," which should be finished in time to allow her to keep the New Orleans date.

Roamin' Around

Ruth Roman walked 7.7 miles in one day while filming a sequence for Warners' "Tomorrow Is Another Day." She was playing a hitchhiking scene and the camera car recorded the number of miles she walked during rehearsals and takes.

"That's nothing," she said. "I once hiked 17 miles in New York, looking for a job."

Star's Lunch

While starring in "A Streetcar Named Desire," produced by Charles K. Feldman for Warner Bros. distribution, Miss Vivien Leigh would eat her lunch in her dressing room. Her favorite dish being an avocado and lettuce salad with ice tea.

* * *

Film Butch

Andre De Toth got a very short butch haircut before starting to direct Warner

Bros.' new outdoor color picture, "Carson City," starring Randolph Scott and Lucille Norman. De Toth said it's easier that way to wash the dust out of his hair.

Nancy Olson Welcomes Motherhood

Nancy Olson is willing to drop from star to featured player class if that's what she must do to stay on the screen while having babies.

"It isn't necessary for my ego to be a star," she says, "but it is necessary for my happiness to have children."

The gold-haired, 22-year-old actress was discussing her screen future now that she is due for a stork visit in early November.

Nancy is at the height of her phenomenal screen rise. She will not do another film until after the blessed event.

"Naturally I want to stay a star. I worked hard to become one. But I wouldn't pass having a baby for all the screen honors," explains the actress.

Nancy's husband is Alan Lerner, librettist and lyricist of the stage musical hit, "Brigadoon," and now composing for films. The couple were married March 19, 1950.

Only three years ago the pink-cheeked, blue-eyed Nancy was a student at the University of California at Los Angeles. She was "discovered" in a student play and cast for a lead in the film, "Canadian Pacific."

In "Force Of Arms," Nancy portrays a WAC lieutenant who falls in love with an infantry lieutenant, enacted by William Holden.

Government Interest

Although Warner Bros. had no contact with the Bureau of Indian Affairs in producing Burt Lancaster's "Jim Thorpe—All American," the government agency has become very much interested in the film. The picture is one of the first about a modern Indian, and the Bureau will follow its impact on the large Indian population in Oklahoma, New Mexico, the Dakotas and elsewhere.

* * *

Gotham Home Best For Cinema Success

The best way to be a success in Hollywood, believes actress Mary Wickes, is to live in New York.

Miss Wickes has sound reasons for her claim. She has made nine trips to the film capital for 20 pictures, and has kept right on residing on West 58th Street in New York City.

The tall comedienne is currently busy at Warner Bros. in "I'll See You In My Dreams," life story of songwriter Gus Kahn, starring Doris Day, Danny Thomas and Frank Lovejoy. In the picture Miss Wickes plays the housekeeper of the Kahns.

Mary generally comes for one picture on each trip, but usually is kept on for a second and even a third.

Films began to woo Miss Wickes when she played the nurse in "The Man Who Came To Dinner" on Broadway. Warner Bros. brought her to the studio for the screen version, and ever since she has been alternating between stage and screen.

"Most stage players move to Hollywood when cast in a picture and then yearn to go back to Broadway for a show," says Miss Wicks. "I've been lucky enough to work in both mediums by staying right on in little old New York."

The actress began her theatrical career after graduating from Washington University in St. Louis, her home town. After little theatre productions there and in Berkshire, New York, she was brought to Broadway by Marc Connally for "The Farmer Takes A Wife."

* * *

Special Spokesman

Raymond Massey recorded narration at Warner Bros. for a special radio program sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews while between takes of "Carson City," outdoor drama in color in which Massey is currently co-starring with Randolph Scott.

* * *

Holden Welcomes Competition As Vital Asset

William Holden hopes every actor gives an outstanding performance and every production is a great hit, for the success of any one is a vital asset to the entire motion picture industry.

"We should realize," Holden pointed out, "that we are an industry of only 30,000 persons, and that good work consistently proves beneficial to one and all.

"The spirit of competition in motion picture production is the finest incentive we have in striving for constant improvement. Everyone in the industry should be delighted when a production is a success, regardless of whose work it is.

"Good pictures and good performances," continued the star, "increase the demand for actors, because producers and directors are constantly seeking to surpass previous efforts."

"When an actor recognizes—and respects—the talents of another, that man is paradoxically no longer acting—he is a real actor."

Douglas Stumped On Timber Land

Kirk Douglas tried to buy some property in the redwood country near Eureka, Calif., where he recently spent several weeks on location for Warner Bros.' Technicolor production, "The Big Trees," but discovered that he could only buy land, while the trees on the area he wanted are forever the property of various lumber companies.

Douglas called off all deals because he said he wouldn't want to own land in the big tree country and never be sure that a lumberjack wouldn't come along and chop down his private forest.
